KBR is a global engineering, construction and services company supporting the energy, petrochemicals, government services and civil infrastructure sectors. The company serves its customers with a broad range of products and services through two business segments, Energy and Chemicals (E&C), and Government and Infrastructure (G&I).

KBR's G&I segment provides program and project management, contingency logistics, operations and maintenance, construction management, engineering, and other services to military and civilian branches of domestic and foreign governments and private customers worldwide. We deliver on-demand support services across the full military mission cycle from contingency logistics and field support to operations and maintenance on military bases.

KBR is proud to employ former military service members. In fact, more than 30 percent of our employees in Iraq, Afghanistan and Kuwait once served in a branch of the U.S. military. We find that former military personnel make an excellent fit for our work in support of the troops—they have an intense desire to serve, they understand the nature of our work, and they are comfortable living and working in the austere conditions that our jobs often require.

Whether it is bath tissue, Dixie cups, office papers, corrugated boxes, plywood or gypsum wallboard, Georgia Pacific products touch nearly every part of life at home and away from home.

Today's Georgia-Pacific is vastly different from the small hardwood lumberyard that salesman Owen Cheatham started in Augusta, Ga., in 1927. The company survived the Great Depression, and ultimately became a top supplier to the U.S. Armed Forces during World War II. In the 79 years since its humble beginning, Georgia-Pacific has grown into one of the world's leading manufacturers and marketers of tissue, disposable tableware, packaging, pulp, paper, building products and related chemicals.

Employees are the driving force behind the products that millions of people worldwide use daily. Our familiar consumer products brands include Quilted Northern®, Angel Soft®, Brawny®, Sparkle®, Vanity Fair®, Mardi Gras®, as well as the Dixie® brand of disposable cups, plates and cutlery. Georgia-Pacific recognizes the unique talents brought to our organization when hiring veterans and believes this will be a significant segment of our future talent.

Schneider National, the nation's largest private truckload provider, has a long history of recruiting Guard members and veterans. Its founder, Al Schneider, was a long-time member of the Wisconsin National Guard.

Today, Schneider offers extended benefits for military employees. Soldiers maintain their benefits while on military leave and receive the difference between military pay, if less than their Schneider base pay, for 18 months.

The company supports Guard and Reserve members' availability for drills, and does not penalize members by having them take vacation or flex time for annual military training. Schneider also offers initiatives to support families of deployed associates and guarantees associates' jobs upon their return.

"Schneider recognizes that individuals with military backgrounds are dedicated, goal-oriented team players with heightened safety skills who get the job done," stated Jack Copeland, director of strategic sourcing, Schneider National.

Schneider is active in the National Committee for Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve, encouraging employers to hire members of the Guard and Reserve and supporting participation in Reserve units. Schneider's benefits programs and recruitment efforts have garnered prestigious awards at state and national levels.

Morgan Stanley is a leading global financial services firm providing a wide range of investment banking, securities, investment management, wealth management and credit services. The firm's employees serve clients worldwide including corporations, governments, institutions and individuals from more than 600 offices in 30 countries.

Morgan Stanley actively participates in various military job fairs, including the Service Academy Career Conference (SACC), and has partnered with recruiting firms specialized in transitioning junior military officers to civilian roles.

Morgan Stanley often seeks former military personnel for many roles, including the Global Wealth Management Group's Financial Advisor Training program. Morgan Stanley feels that military personnel may have an edge over their peers of a similar age and experience level.

James McMahon III, a former Naval Aviator, and now vice president and branch manager at Morgan Stanley notes, "the reason for hiring military veterans is the obvious discipline, character and integrity the veterans have exhibited in their prior professions. Military leadership and intestinal fortitude can be good preparation for the rigors and demands of the practice of wealth management."

Werner Enterprises was built for drivers by a driver – founder and CEO, C.L. Werner. Fifty years later, our company still remains committed to providing our drivers with a great career and to treating every driver with care, respect, and dignity. An example of this commitment is demonstrated by the establishment of the Werner Enterprises Professional Truck Driver Apprenticeship Program. This program was approved by the U.S. Department of Labor in April of 2006 and provides structured on-the-job learning and related instruction for approximately one year.

We recognize the incredible potential of the highly-trained and motivated men and women who have served in the military. Eligible veterans who participate in this exclusive program are able to draw on their VA Educational Benefits for a full year in addition to receiving their normal pay. Any individual who successfully completes the program will be certified as a Werner Enterprises Professional Truck Driver and will receive a nationally-recognized certificate from the U.S. Department of Labor.

Werner offers a variety of divisions including dedicated, regional, over the road, team and trainer opportunities. Sixty percent of these opportunities get our drivers home daily or weekly. We also have many maintenance, technical, professional, and clerical opportunities throughout the country.

Whether you are a military service veteran, retiree or member of the Reserve or National Guard, the transition from military to civilian career can be a unique and challenging one, with its own set of cultural issues.

The Armed Services Forum is one of Booz Allen Hamilton's methods to incorporate military service members, veterans and retirees into the firm's culture through outreach and professional development. Its key goals include:

- Facilitating the retention and advancement of employees with military backgrounds;
- Enhancing the knowledge base of employees with non-military backgrounds about military and defense contracts and perspectives;

- Assisting military service members, veterans and retirees with transition from the military culture to a corporate, collaborative culture, and

- Providing a venue to share professional development best practices.

Booz Allen Hamilton, a global strategy and technology consulting firm, works with clients to deliver results that endure. Veterans play an important role in fulfilling that mission. Check out all of the career opportunities at Booz Allen Hamilton at www.boozallen.com/careers.

Headquarters: Columbus, Ohio

of employees: 20,000

of veteran employees: 2,250

2005 Revenues: $11.9 billion

Web site: www.aep.com

American Electric Power is one of the largest electric utilities in the United States, delivering electricity to more than 5 million customers in 11 states. AEP ranks among the nation's largest generators of electricity, owning nearly 36,000 megawatts of generating capacity in the U.S. AEP also owns the nation's largest electricity transmission system, a nearly 39,000-mile network that includes more 765 kilovolt extra-high voltage transmission lines than all other U.S. transmission systems combined.

AEP believes that hiring qualified military veterans can be a "win-win" for both the company and the applicant. While serving their company, many military personnel gain education, skills and work experience suitable for a career in the utility industry, thereby saving training time and costs for both the applicant and the company. Positions particularly applicable to those who have military technical training and experience include power plant operators, chemical technicians, maintenance technicians, radiation protection technicians and those who supervise individuals in those positions.

Why does Norfolk Southern like to hire veterans? In three words: integrity, skill and commitment.

Norfolk Southern operates a freight railroad seven days a week, 24 hours a day in 22 states east of the Mississippi River. We handle all kinds of freight, and we do it efficiently and safely. Norfolk Southern has maintained the best employee safety record in the industry for 17 consecutive years.

We hire people who will be there when called, who will do what they have been trained to do and who will look out for their own safety and that of their team. We can't think of a better place to find our future employees than the U. S. military.

We're a military friendly employer. Nearly 15 percent of our employees have served in the armed forces. We currently pay an income supplement of $1,500 per month and maintain benefit coverage for employees deployed in Operations Enduring Freedom, Iraqi Freedom, and Noble Eagle. We have a full-time military recruiter who attends transition assistance events up and down the East Coast and we will be participating in the Army's PaYS recruiting program. 2005 Revenues: $13.4 billion

Military recruiting manager: Rich Kenny

At 7-Eleven, they value your service. 7-Eleven supports America's troops and their service. U.S. Armed Forces veterans have qualifications and experience especially suited to employment with 7-Eleven in convenience retailing. The company has opportunities in management and operations for those who are leaving the service to begin their career.

Your ability to take responsibility, lead others and get the job done is just what they need. 7-Eleven offers a career that builds on the skills and training you already have, with an opportunity for growth and success. The company's defined career paths prepare you for the next level, and equip you to create the future you want. We offer a competitive salary, benefits, and an incentive program that rewards performance.

7-Eleven President and CEO Joe DePinto, a former Army officer and West Point graduate, says his military experience provided valuable life lessons.

"I learned a lot about teamwork and selfless service," he said. "To lead, you must serve. You do so by serving the people that care of those on our front lines, which are our store employees because they take care of our customers."

What "sane" company would encourage employees to "take the competition very seriously, but don't take yourself too seriously." That is just how employees of Southwest are encouraged to approach customer service.

Employees think in terms of "We" and "Doing the Right Thing." This translates into a company whose culture is caring and giving, and whose reputation for stability is unmatched in the airline industry.

Southwest Airlines Co. is a major domestic airline that provides primarily short haul, high-frequency, point-to-point, low-fare service. Today Southwest operates over 400 Boeing 737 aircraft in 62 cities. The airline has the lowest operating cost structure in the domestic airline industry and consistently offers the lowest and simplest fares. Southwest also has one of the best overall customer service records.

Military veterans know all about service, team concept and doing the right thing and that's why you should consider a career at Southwest. In addition to a competitive salary and generous profit sharing plan, Southwest encourages professional growth and fun on the job—at the same time.
